

How do you feel about weasels, bats, bears, bobcats, cougars, racoons, squirrels, sea otters and all the other wild animals living nearby, doing what they must to survive? Are some too close for comfort? Can we live together without conflict?

Please join us for a truly enlightening Tuesday Talk. We are so pleased to have as our speaker, Fawn Harris, Hospital Manager, Education Coordinator, and Licensed Wildlife Rehabilitator at West Sound Wildlife Shelter on Bainbridge. A noted expert on ecology and wildlife conservation in the Pacific Northwest, Fawn also teaches at the Northwest Indian College's Native Environmental Studies program in Nisqually.
